Elizabeth Ziemba, president of Brookline-based Shared Inc., and Karin Holm, program director for Public-Private Partnerships for the Global Forum for Health, based in Geneva, Switzerland.

Elizabeth Ziemba, president of Shared Inc. in Brookline, recently returned from Mumbai, India, where she presented a report prepared for the World Health Organization at the Global Forum for Health international conference. The report, 'Public-Private Partnerships for Neglected Diseases: Opportunities to Address Pharmaceutical Gaps for Neglected Diseases," focused on the lack of availability for diseased found in low-income countries and recommended ways that the European Union could improve support for the research and development of medicines for diseases of extreme poverty.
